Both these women swore they had seen Mrs. Carman enter her husband's office to answer the telephone, and they corroborated the testimony of George Golder, the witness who testified Friday that Mrs. Carman had admitted him to the house.

The corroboration, combined with the testimony given by a negro maid in the Carman home, constituted what was declared by Dist. Atty. The maid, who admitted that she had a long talk with George Levy, counsel for Mrs. Carman, the morning after the murder, appeared to be troubled with a serious loss of memory.

To many vital questions she answered:

Newcastle man. If the offer is right, says Dime, Chip will

That the House of Lords would pass the bill in order to amend it in committee was a foregone conclusion, but there was surprise that only ten "diehards" could be found to vote for Lord Willoughby de Broke's motion for its rejection.

The Marquis of Crew, in ciosing the

if the bill was amended totally to exclude Ulster. Concerning the possibility of a solution by conference, if dropping the amending bill and breaking down the government's policy was to be a preliminary, it would be impossible for the government to accept it, but short of entailing such a sacrifice, the government was most anxious to facilitate a conference, he said.

For himself, he did not hesitate to say that if John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader; Sir Edward Carron, the Ulster unionist leader, william O'Brien and two or three other Irishmen, could get together it would be a better augury for some permanent arrangement than any other kind of a conference.

After division was taken, notices of everal amendments were handed in roviding for the exclusion from home ule of the whole of Ulster.

These amendments if carried, will nake the exclusion of the whole provuce of Ulster absolute, without any derendum or election, and the exiuded province will be placed under the jurisdiction of the new Secretary of State in the Imperial Parliament, those administrative orders would reuire the sanction of the British Parlament.

Transport Sherman Held at Honolulu to Find If War Department Will Cut Red Tape.

[BY A. F. Night Will.]

HONOLULU (T. H.) July 6.—The firm Manila to San Francisco with 1100 persons aboard, was kept from Manila to San Francisco with 1100 persons aboard, was kept from selling today from here by the appeal of 350 discharged soldiers who have done their fullest share to keep our criminal courts busy and to help fill our jalls and prisons.

When the Sherman arrived it was found that she had room for only thirty more passengers under the Federal regulations for safety at sea.

Realizing that they would have to wait a month longer if the Sherman sailed without them the soldiers made a vigorous appeal to army officials and a request was cabled to the War Department in Washington for permission to allow the Sherman to carry 210 passengers in excess of regulations.

The transport will wait until 10 a.m. tomorrow for the reply from Washington, and will leave fifteen hours late.

Oil to Soothe Waves.

[Popular Mechanics:] To protect a lifeboat in a heavy sea, the familiar device known as a sea anchor, consisting of a triangular piece of canvas lashed to a rigid frame, has been improved by the addition of an oil tank. A cable or chain bridle is arranged to keep the lower point of the canvas triangle submerged, while oil oozing from holes in the bottom of the cylinder smooths down the waves and prevents "combers" from breaking and swamping the boat. As the anchor holds the boat head-on, the action of the wind and waves carries the oil-covered water past the boat. A number of these sea anchers are in use in the army transport service.

Did Chord by Band Demolish Long Beach Pier?

New Theory Defense Against Suits for Millions.

Jury to Decide Momentous Action Tomorrow.

Did the striking of the keynote by a band send forty persons to death and more than 200 to injury when the Auditorium pier collapsed at Long Beach on Empire Day, 1913?"

In the closing hours of the first of more than 200 suits against the City of Long Beach for damages aggregating $3,750,000 this remarkable theory was developed by the defense yesterday in Judge Houser's court.

'It was assumed that the Kilite's Band struck the keynote to which the building would vibrate and 'by sustaining the note racked the structure, tore it asunder, and precipitated victims to the sand below.

The theory was propounded by Attorney Haas to E. L. Mabray, a civil engineer, who declared that every building has its keynote — a certain rhythm to which it will vibrate sympathetically. If long sustained, Mr. Mabray declared, the note would result in the collapse of the structure. But, he stated that, in his opinion, the band music was not the cause of the collapse. The primary cause, he thought, was rotten timbers. He said that while he was standing in front of the Yale Hotel just before the collapse the band music caused the hotel windows to rattle.

The scientific principle involved is familiar, but has not before been advanced to explain the catastrophe.

It is expected that a verdict in this opening action will be reached to explain the catastrophe.

The romance was born only a few weeks ago with the visit of Miss Osborne to her brother, Clarence, who is geologist for the commission. He and Mr. Stohl, through association of interests, are close friends and room-mates at the University Club of Sacramento. The younger Osborne had presented his chum to his sister on the occasion of a previous visit, and this time there was but little for him to do but stand around and pretend not to notice what was going on.

The wedding is to be a quiet affair at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Osborne on August 1. The young couple will reside in Sacramento after their honeymon trip.

The complaint elleges that the national and mixed gas rates fixed by the Council are unjust, confiscatory, unconstitutional and void. It further declares that the action was taken without due or fair examination of the properties of the corporation by the Board of Public Utilities.

The replacement value of the corporation's plant and distributing system is given as $1,006,4145.13, the value of the franchises as $1,006,006 and the value of the business secured through the expenditure of much time and money as $1,006,000. The annual consumption of manufactured gas is given as $3,750,000,000 cubic feet, and the complaint alleges that if natural or mixed gas is distributed the amount will be greatly reduced because of the greater heat value of the natural product.

The overt acts charged against them are that in April, 1911. Oosterhuis, at San Pedro, purchased a large quantity of gasoline and engine distillate for the use of the gasoline launch, Mae, and that in October of the same year, Oosterhuis and Weimer bought a lot of gasoline and engine distillate at San Diego, intended for use on the Mae, and a trip for contraband Chinese sailing from Ensenada, Mex., and touching at California ports.

With the charge of a single overt act, as set out in the indictment, the government can go into other acts of that character, and it is said that efforts will be made to connect Oosterhuis, O'Banion and Kirby with at least four separate trips made in the Mae, from Mexico during 1911. It is also alleged that, counting the eighteen Chinese were landed at Sunset Beach, that the indicted men have been instrumental in landing more than 100 yellow men during a period covered by a few months of that year. Beginning with the Sunset Beach job, in May, there followed, according to the statements of the immigration officials, the following trips: In September, two parties, one at Monterey Bay, and another at Hunter's Point, near San Francisco, and in October another landed at Oakland Creek, near the coal bunkers.

T is a truism that, although a man may run risks with his property while he is alive, he is disturbed by the thought of risk after his death. Undoubtedly you have often considered fondly the Bequests which you will leave to your Children — to assure them of protection, support and education. But have you taken the proper means of doing this?

There is only one way to do it—that is by a properly drawn Will. Are you aware that if you should die without a Will your wife, children or others dependent upon you may not be provided for as you wish; that a large part of your estate may be used in expensive and unnecessary litiga-tion, should one not qualified to carry on your business be appointed administrator?

Who but yourself will be to blame if your Estate should be squandered and your family ruined? Who but yourself will be to blame if your Children never receive the Bequests

We trust our little neighbor city will not become too bitter in its prohibition fight. Nothing is so intemperate as temperance when fired by anger. How different, except in magnitude of preparation and ingenuity of destruction, are the efforts of England, France, Germany from those of Persia a thousand and more years ago when Xerxes heaped his treasury with extorted gold and crammed his armies with conscripted slaves against the day when he should "remember the Greeks"?

When such peaceful nations as Switzer-land, Holland and Belgium are alarmed into a military alliance and preparation we may know how portentous are the augurs read by the diplomats.

Some countries remain at peace. But what sort of peace may it be called when they are frantically preparing for war? Every nation is alert. Some of them are terrified, and those that are not already venturing into hostilities are more or less navileacity recovered by against whom it may select?

There can be no order where there is no law. There can be no law unless differences and arguments are arbitrated in the established tribunals. The laws of Germany permit the peasant to go to court against the Kaiser, and a recent verdict in favor of the peasant shows that the most powerful autocrat of Europe may come off the loser if the jurists believe him to be in the wrong. The status of legal equality that places the peasant and the Kaiser on a level is a far cry from feudalism. The a level is a far cry from feudalism. The progress of the ages has eliminated many evils, but not yet has it established the weaker nation as the equal of the more powerful. Not yet is it mandatory that national grievances must be arbitrated as are individual grievances. Until that time comes the tide of war, with recurrent vio-lence, will inundate nation after nation and sweep away race after race.

There is not a country in the world that does not recognize the necessity of a cen-tralized authority—a national, colid, posi-tive government, controlling and regulating the departments established for the maintenance of peace.

But the nations of the world as a whole have yet to recognize the necessity of a cantralised authority for the government of the world, a congress of the nations, a tribunal of all races and all people, for the maintenance of peace and order all over

War is waste. The millions upon mil-

In actual warfare men are not only exterminated, but their works and their heritage, estab-lished and developed for the benefits of prosperity, are swept away.

Every day five-gallon paint kegs, each containing $50,000 in gold coin, have been rolled across the sidewalk on Wall street to waiting drays to be carted to steamers bound for Europe. In one week 400 of these kegs containing $20,000,000 were thus shipped. The gold shipments for the six months ending with June amounted to about $100,000,000. A million dollars in gold can be expanded to $4,000,000 in credit. A shrinkage of $400,000,000 in buying power is "viewed with alarm" by Wall

Another factor to account for gold shipments is the fact that Russia, Germany. England and France all need more gold than we do. The whole atmosphere of Eu-rope is charged with suspicion, and every country is storing away money in its war chests. Germany, with $60,000,000 in gold stored away in a war chest in the Castle of Spandau, has gone mad on the subject of preparing for war and, as a result, the country has been left flat on its back finan-cially. In addition to the war crass France is facing a political crisis, with a change in its Cabinet every few days. Plans are also under way in France to float a large loan and wipe out the deficit in the budget. Toward that end gold is being p through the premium that is being bid for

We have plenty of gold. On January 3 the New York banks reported their gold holdings at $322,730,000. Yet, notwithstanding the shipment abroad of $70,000,000 by June 20, the gold holdings of the New York banks at that date stood at $426,118,-

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

When shades of night are falling I always hit the hay; but from it I am crawling at early dawn of day. So help me, Alexander, I would not miss that treat, for there is nothing grander than morning, cool and sweet. The little birds are singing as they so scooting by; the rising sun is stringing atrange tints across the sky; the winds are softly sighing, the dew is on the grass, and butterflies are flying above the garden sass. Hushed is the workday clamor of busy mart and street, the sound of saw and hammer, the tread of weary feet, the voice of townlot booster, that stands in need of grease—the crow of wakeful rooster alone digurbs the peace. It is is the sweetest portion of day, this hour of bliss; and sleep is an abortion at such a time as this. To see the bright sun breaking night's chains, that had When shades of night are falling I always bright sun breaking night's chains, that had him bound; to see the old world waking to try ahother round; to see the shadows creeping away, a routed flock—oh, who creeping away, a routed flock—oh, would lie a-sleeping till 9 or 10 o'clock?

[Philadelphia Register:] One aftern a very stout woman was rambling along a country road when she suddenly noticed a little boy walking closely beside her. Not knowing the youngster, she was naturally knowing the youngster, she was naturally somewhat surprised.

"Look here, little boy," she heatedly cried, "why are you following me along like that? Go away from me instantly!"
"I ain't doin' nothin', lady," pleaded the little fellow. "Please don't send me away."
"You must go away at once," repeated "You must go away at once," repeated was in a man. He wanted to own it, body and soul; to dress it and feed it and play with it. The tiny waist alone was his undoing, the rounded swaying hips—ah, but the seductiveness of modesty was diabolical, if you like, and no sweet, fair, blushing maiden was safe on the street alone. Those were the days when escorts were essential, those were the days when sevential, those were the days when feminine loveliness could not be trusted anywhere without a chaperon, those were the days when parents realized the awful importance of keeping a strict guard over pretty, modest, Mary Ann.

But it isn't like that now. We still have seductive waists, but we modestly hide the fact, so that youthful, is or matronly 40 looks exactly the same with the light behind her.

But it isn't like that now. We still have seductive waists, but we modestly hide the fact, so that youthful is or matronly 40 looks exactly the same with the light behind her.

We still have shapely rounded hips, but you'd never guess it. We carefully coneal them beneath an armor plate of corset and several boits of stoppy material.

As for that peeping ankle. There is no deception about that. We show it in all its glaring unprettiness—it is the self-same ankle that used to peep so diabolically alluringly, but now it frankly comes out in the open and shows itself for the common thing it is.

Those cleverly draped and heaving bosoms that wreaked such damage to masculine hearts in the sweetly pretty age. We have them still, but we don't pretend they are any better than they ought to be. We have callously shed the charm of mystery and bared our unbeautiful secret, with a calm indifference to admiration.

Our soft, silken, glossy hair, with the ravishing secaped tendrils—ours atill. But instead of fisunting it as the sweetly pretty maiden did with her diabolical instinct for luring the impressionable male—woman's crewning glory—how do we treat it now? We flatten it down in the ugliest, most grotesque little pomaded twists and cover up as much of it as we possibly can with tight-fitting monstresities of hats with ridiculous stickups and stick-outs in all sorts of absurd positions. We don't for a moment consider those things pretty and alluring but we do consider them impudent. Imperfinent, daring, individual, and they are intended to convey the idea that we know the men don't like it and we jolly well don't care! Clothes are our amusement, a mode of expression, an avenue of getting rid of superfluous money, a means of irritating men, perhaps, a methodoof exercising our independence, of perpetrating our little joke, but that any sane creature could be discovered who would call them immorrally alluring—oh, please don't be so very, very funny!

Any sensible man of the world will tell you that Hideule kills love. We kno a chaperon, and the idea of not allowing her to go out alone is entirely laughable! She can and does go anywhere alone with perfect safety. And she looks a perky, freakish, artificial, shapeless sort of a hundle, with obviously rouged and powdered complexion, about which she makes no secret. She's rather well informed upon quite a number of subjects, she is frankly selfish and egotistical and vain, she is decidedly disrespectful to the lord of creation, but she certainly isn't dangerously alluring. She may be a self-conscious joke.

tion, but she certainly isn't dangerously alluring. She may be a self-conscious joke, but she's no siren.

And no one knows it better than the men. The artfulness of them, the hypocrites. Of course they preferred the sweetly pretty type. Dash it all, temptation should be temptation! What possible excuse have they now for their peccadillos? The woman tempted me! A nice sort of a fool the modern Adam would look if he sprang that explanation on the fellows at the club.

So in sheer self-defense he is indicting

the club.

So in sheer self-defense he is indicting the modern fashions, but the joily humbug dare not come out with the glaring truth. He dare not say this extraordinary creature dare not say this extraordinary creature has ceased to cater for my admiration, that she is deliberately making herself as unattractive, as unalluring as clothes and manner will permit. She even goes to the extent of drooping her silly shoulders and caving in that alluring, palpitating bosom we used to find so seductive. She even sticks out her tummy, which is most unpretty. She even walks with a floppy jerk that is hideous and she knows it.

No, he can't very well say that. So he hastens to accuse her of immorality, to attack her in her most vulnerable spot, her reputation. Even in this year of grace a woman's character is quite important. To attack that is still the surest method of hurting. So our fordly male hastens to attribute our colossal indifference to his admiration to immorality! Enough to make the devil weep!

[BY A. P. Night Wire.]

MEXICO CITY, July 6.—Ignacio Algocer, Minister of the Interior, was appointed today Minister of Commerce and Industry, to replace Querido Moheno. Senor Alcocer will carry both portfolios.

The Chilean government today replied to the message of the Mexican government, thanking Chile for its part in the peace negotiations at Niggara Falls. The message from Chile expressed most cordial sentiments toward Mexico.

Reports from Guadalajara announce that the Bank of Jalisco suspended operations today. It was believed at first that the suspension was due to financial difficulties, but the manager explained to the depositors that the bank had been closed by order of the government because it had failed to deliver the 600,000 pesca in connection with the internal loan floated several months ago.

The Bekins incident is closed officially. The Mayor has accepted his resignation and the "inactive" commission has escaped the fate of being dismissed for "gross neglect of duty."

The Mayor sent the following statement to the Council yesterday. "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the resignation of Martin Bekins as a member of the Board of Public Utilities conveyed to me through your thonorable body, and I desire to say that in order to dispense with an inactive commissioner, and to enable me to appoint a member of said board who will attend to the duties of the office. I have accepted the same."

Mr. Bekins achieved the record of being absent at fifty-five of sixty-four meetings of the Board of Public Utilities in eight months. He attended only nine meetings of the board during that period.
